For XP and Vista If you are on Windows XP or Vista go into the Control Panel and right click on the My Computer icon and select Properties. For Mac OS X First, open the Finder and Control-click on the Dock and choose "Go To Services". If you want to disable the background processes for good, you can go to the Apple menu then choose "System Preferences..." and select the "Security" tab. If you don't see "Automatically open files downloaded from the Internet" in the "Open Safe" section, check it then click the lock icon, and choose "Keychain Access". There, you will find a file entitled "login" in the list of "Login Items". Right-click and choose "Delete". Your computer will now have an autorun disabled, even if it is not completely turned off.
