River Avon (Tasmania) The River Avon is a river in Tasmania, Australia. Course and features The river rises at a large lake above the Derwent Reservoir in the Central Highlands and flows south before flowing through the Avon Gorge in Eaglehawk Neck, East Coast before it reaches the town of Burnie, which is situated on the mouth of the river where it discharges into the Tamar River. The river is a major waterway in the Burnie Gorge and is at least long. The river is used for recreation and to generate hydro-electricity in the Burnie Power Station. References Category:Burnie, Tasmania Picturing quality of care. The development of the Picture Quality Assessment (PQA) of nurse caring (PQNC) instrument is discussed. The sample consisted of 624 registered nurse (RN) aides in Philadelphia, PA. The percentage of RNs scoring more than 8/10 in the PQNCA was 91.5%, indicating their high level of agreement with the way the care they provided was perceived. The findings suggest that the PQNCA instrument can be used to measure nurses' perceptions of caring and to reveal areas for quality improvement. Q: JavaFX: Storing User Input in a Variable Sorry if this seems really basic but I'm a beginner to programming. I've created a lab assignment that is very similar to a lab I had in a former semester, but I am having some issues with the way things are done. The point of the lab is to just input a number, convert it to the indicated number of pieces, and then place the pieces in a grid. If the number is less than that grid value (I can change it to be any value), I want it to take the number and add 3 and then place a 3 in the appropriate grid location for that number. What I'm having issues with is storing the number in a variable so that I can determine how many pieces to add to the number. I'm not sure if I should use an ArrayList or the String type of variable. This is the method I'm currently using: public String findNumber() { String number = ""; Scanner scanner = new Scanner(System.in); System.out.println("Enter a number you'd like to break into"); number = scanner.nextLine(); return number; } A: You can use StringBuilder edd6d56e20
