an American film noir directed by Robert Wise and starring Richard Widmark, Toni Gardner, and John Lund. The film is a remake of Fritz Lang's German film The Blue Angel. Plot International gangster and money launderer Eddie Barclay (Widmark) hits a woman, Martha (Gardner), when her boyfriend, Earl Lambert (James Brown), draws a gun on him. He is arrested, convicted and sentenced to 10-years in prison in 1946.

Long-time mutual acquaintances Lambert and Murdock (Lund) are working on a cross-country train robbery scheme with three gang members, including Dick Allen (Anthony Caruso) and gangster Lucky Pervik (George E. Stone). Murdock is promised a million dollars in order to carry out the heist. Since he is an honest man, he tells his partner Eddie about the agreement, and informs him that a man named "Dutch" Patterson (Robert Desmond) is in on the deal. Eddie goes undercover as Murdock's assistant, working for Lester Plummer, a short-tempered, fast-talking assistant district attorney (Paul Halvonik). Eddie is assigned to protect an informant, Elwood (Boris Karloff), who is critical to the team's success. When Elwood refuses to give the gang's location to the police, Earl is killed by Eddie during an attempted ambush at the apartment where they are staying. Now Eddie's gang is alerted to the FBI's interest in him, and he makes it clear that he won't take part in the robbery. Murdock shoots him in the leg and steals his car
